Polarized light information modulates sensorimotor decision making in goldfish

Santiago Otero Coronel, Martín Berón de Astrada and Violeta Medan

During the process of revision of the original manuscript we were asked to do additional control experiments. Until we have concluded these experiments and we have a clearer picture of the use of polarization cues for target detection in goldfish we have decided to withdraw the original article.