

Supplemental Fig 4. Transmembrane helices of GSS1 (top) and GSS2 (bottom) analyzed by TMHMM.

Both GSS1 and GSS2 have N-terminal secretory signal peptides, indicating that they are extracellular proteins. GSS2 also contains a transmembrane helix at its N-terminal, indicating that it is a membrane anchor protein with a C-terminal extending outside of the cell membrane.